

2008 Financial Literacy Survey

As Americans, we are currently facing some of the most troubling financial times that many of us have ever experienced. When we review what is happening on both the individual and the corporate level, it becomes increasingly obvious that we, as a Nation need to place a greater emphasis on financial education. In this edition of our Newsletter, we've decided to devote our attention to the recently published, "2008 Financial Literacy Survey". As you review this information, consider how we can work together to increase opportunities for Americans to receive greater access to financial education.
